

Summary of Membership Entitlements

Association of Registrars of the Universities & Colleges of Canada

Regular members:

Institutions which are recognized by AUCC or ACCC and have paid the annual fee in accordance with By-Law I are Institutional Members of the Association. The Office of the Registrar, or equivalent, of each participating institution shall designate a Regular Member as the Institutional Representative who will vote on behalf of that Institution. Institutional Members only may vote. The Office of the Registrar, or equivalent, of each participating institution may designate as many Regular Members as it wishes in accordance with By-Law I. Rights and privileges of Regular Members are as follows:

- Eligible to participate actively in the work of the Association
- May vote on all matters brought before the Association (as above)
- Receive a copy of the biennial Directory
- Are listed in the Directory and on the Association's web site
- Receive copies of CONTACT
- May subscribe to ARUCC-L
- Eligible for members' rates for biennial conference

Associate Members

Professional representatives in educational agencies or institutions not eligible for Institutional Membership may apply for Associate Membership, which must be approved by the Executive Committee. Such institutions may designate as many Associate Members as it wishes in accordance with By-Law I.

- Same privileges as Regular Members, but may not vote or hold office.

Corporate Members

Corporate Members are those organizations which provide products and/or services that assist or benefit Association members in carrying out their duties and responsibilities and which desire to participate in Association activities as non-voting members. The Executive may approve corporations seeking membership in the Association and will determine the extent and type of participation. In return for the corporate membership fee, ARUCC offers the following benefits to its Corporate Members:

- Listing in the biennial Directory and web site with a brief (25 word) explanation of company's services
- A complimentary copy of the Directory
- 50% reduction in exhibit space at Association's national biennial conference (direct costs for additional hook-ups are borne by the Corporate Member)
- Direct access to the Executive for discussion of corporate services which may benefit the membership
- Complimentary subscription to the Association's publication, Contact, and an opportunity to contribute brief articles to the Corporate News page
- One complimentary set of membership mailing labels per annum, on request
- Further sets of labels available for a fee ($50 for an electronic posting; $50 plus costs for labels)

Honorary Members

Honorary Members are those individuals no longer eligible to be Regular Members, but with records of significant service to the Association, who are so selected by the Executive Committee. They shall enjoy a permanent invitation to attend Association meetings and to maintain an interest in Association affairs.

- All privileges of regular membership except the right to vote or hold office.
